I finally followed the advice of some friends and decided to apply for the Global Entry and the TSA Pre-check. I’m not that big of a traveler but others have indicated that I travel enough to justify the time and energy and minimal expense it requires to go through the steps it takes to get approved for this specialized entrance and exit from the USA. I’m also told that it’s a one-stop-shop and if I am granted Global Entry, this also works for the TSA Pre-check? You frequent flyers know more about this stuff than I do.

Metaphorically speaking, there’s something fascinating about the whole process and being granted these special privileges when it comes to air travel. I realize, in light of the many challenges we have faced, that background checks and appropriate security are necessary in order to keep everyone safe. But from a whole other angle, I just find it interesting that we have come up with a process to make it easier and less of a hassle when it comes to our coming in and our going out, at least for some of us. I will admit that for the few times I am at the airport during the course of a given year, there’s something intriguing and appealing about being in the faster line! Minimal bag check, no taking off shoes, and walking through with significant ease looks a whole lot better than traversing the lines like a snake. Not a lot of questions. Not a lot of scrutiny. That’s my kind of line!

This past week as I was celebrating one of the daily masses, the gospel text that appeared for that day was all about the tax collectors and sinners who came to listen to Jesus. They are the hungry ones who carry a lot of baggage, if you will. Criticized by the scribes and Pharisees because Jesus was hanging around with and eating with known sinners and social outcasts, He turns to them and starts telling the story of the lost sheep and likewise the story of the lost coin. I’ve come to seek what was lost, Jesus tells them. Finding the lost and restoring life to those who feel shunned, confused, and in need of mercy and second chances: that’s His mission! That’s why I find it humorous as I’m going through this Global Entry process. Being screened and scrutinized might be the way for proper security in the 21st century, but I’m guessing that for Jesus, there’s no such thing as two lines, only one... and that is the line of mercy. Everyone carries a lot of baggage. Everyone has pieces of our lives in which we might feel that we don’t deserve any kind of global entry into the kingdom of God. I think Jesus says otherwise. The kingdom of mercy is not just for the “global entry approved,” but for all who come seeking a better life and a healed heart. All may come. All may enter. God says: you’ve all been approved.

Have a great week. Stay warm in this crazy cold weather!

PUTTING THE SOLIDARITY IN SOLIDARITY MARKET

This Sunday Old St. Pat’s celebrates its 12th Solidarity Market. Before coming on board here at OSP I’d traversed many other markets. Sometimes they are simply called fair trade markets, or fair trade bazaars if you’re feeling a little fancy. I’ve been to holiday markets and alternative holiday markets, but I hadn’t been to a solidarity market until OSP. I know what you’re thinking, “does it really matter what you call it?” Regardless of what we name these marketplaces, their content typically stays pretty consistent: there are fair trade vendors and artisans, there are unique and artfully crafted products, and there are shoppers and buyers. The focus is generally centered around the what: the shopping, the products, the notion that the cause you are supporting is good. What about the why?

Solidarity. To me, the answer lies in the incorporation of this very special Catholic Social Teaching principle. Even if we don’t fully understand the nuances of the fair trade business model, we are at least reasonably familiar with the principle of solidarity. This Catholic Social Teaching tenant reminds us that we are all connected; that we belong to one another. Most importantly, it reminds us that we have a responsibility to care for one another, and in order to do so, we must make ourselves familiar with the realities of our brothers and sisters; our neighbors.

More than one billion of the world’s population survives on less than $1 per day. We live in a society where being poor is criminalized, where those who experience poverty are trapped in a cycle of disenfranchisement and exploitation, preventing any hopes of economic mobility. By providing opportunity for economically disadvantaged populations, cultivating transparent partnerships, ensuring safe work conditions and livable wages, the fair trade model aims to combat this widespread poverty and exploitation. This is economic justice - removing the barriers which prohibit others from securing the foundation for a dignified, productive and creative life.

The why. Participating in fair trade markets isn’t just about feeling good about ourselves or looking good to others. It isn’t just about stuffing stockings but, by all means, tuck as many fair trade gifts as you want under your tree this year. It’s about the much-needed and often forgotten connection. It’s about living out our values of mercy, compassion, justice, and human dignity in the marketplace and in our everyday lives. It’s about solidarity. I remember reading somewhere that our connectedness and solidarity are best understood as a multiplication problem: When doing multiplication if a zero is included, the product will always be zero. When any of our neighbors are forgotten or exploited – left at zero – we are all at zero. May we never forget this.

BETH KATSAROS WINTER COAT DRIVE
November 24, 2019

As we have our first day of snow and slush, we’re reminded of those for whom winter weather is especially difficult - even life-threatening.

As your family pulls out the winter wear and realizes some of it won’t be worn this season, please remember our Winter Coat Drive. We will be hosting our Drive on November 24 so that the recipient organizations can get the donations into the hands of those who need them before the weather gets too treacherous.

On November 24, in the FXW School Cafeteria, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., families are asked to donate coats, mittens, scarves and boots for the benefit of the families of needy families in the Chicago area. If you can assist us in any way, please email Beth Marek, the Director of Outreach, at elizabethm@oldstpats.org.

This clothing drive is named in memory of Beth Katsaros, a champion of the less fortunate.

The Katsaros Family joined the OSP community in 1987. Beth, her husband Peter, and children Sarah, Matt, and Kathryn, as was their way in many aspects of their lives, became active participants immediately. They became involved in helping at the Block Party, in the FXW School, the Celebration of Life, and Clothing Drives, to name just a few of their commitments. Beth was one of the original Family Advisory Board members, responsible for creating faith opportunities for the families of Old St. Patrick’s Church. She served in this capacity until 1999.

Throughout her life, Beth was committed to non-for-profit work, education, and public housing. Upon learning of the assassination of a school-aged child from Cabrini Green who was on his way to school, Beth made it a point of going to see the principal of that school -- Sojourner Truth. They established a close relationship, and it became Beth’s mission to help out the school in whatever way she could. She began by raising money for their Drum Corps which desperately needed uniforms and instruments. Appealing to the OSP community, Beth was able to raise the needed monies and eventually bring the students here to gift us with their music during mass. Soon afterwards, Beth and Dee Leonard began collecting coats and winter clothing for the Sojourner Truth School families. Beth’s efforts to help those in need continue to this day.

She departed this life January 20, 2001.

Beth’s passion, service, and activism live on in so many, many different ways. Unfortunately the Sojourner Truth School is now closed, but the need for winter coats extends throughout Chicagoland, and we will continue to donate to them in Beth’s honor.

Please look through your closets to see if you might have any winter coats, boots, etc. which you might be able to share. Collections will be taken on November 24th ONLY in the FXW School Cafeteria.

In addition to needing those who can donate clothing, we also need people to help sort and deliver the donations. Families and children of all ages are welcome! Sorting will probably continue until 1:00 pm. Please sign up to help by emailing Beth Marek at elizabethm@oldstpats.org. Please contact Beth Marek with any questions.

Many thanks for your generosity and for helping to continue Beth Katsaros’s mission to share life and love, remembering that “family” extends beyond the people living within our own four walls.

“Winter is an etching, spring a watercolor, summer an oil painting and autumn a mosaic of them all.”

– Stanley Horowitz
“Most Christians think that Advent is preparation for the ‘birth of Jesus,’ but we cannot prepare for a past event. It is also not simply the preparation for his annual ‘birthday.’ Rather, this season is an intense rehearsal of what Christian living is supposed to be each day: paying attention to the sacred revelations and surprising Incarnations that the Holy One springs on us each day. Every day of our lives ... every moment of our lives is a potential ‘divine ambush.’ Advent is a four week intensive that each year re-certifies us ... recalibrates Christians for detecting God’s unpredictable yet constant reincarnating in the world.”

CELEBRATE THANKSGIVING DAY AT OLD ST. PAT’S
Thanksgiving Liturgy with Fr. Tom Hurley
Thursday, November 28 | 10 am | Old St. Patrick’s Church | Prelude music at 9:40 am

Thanksgiving—a time of sharing when people come together around the table as a family and community. In celebration of this year’s holiday, we invite you to experience the joy of sharing a variety of gifts. Please join us for a special Thanksgiving Liturgy on Thursday, November 28 at 10 am in the Church. With joyful hearts, we begin the morning with a 20-minute prelude of American music, led by the Old St. Pat’s Choir. We will then proceed to give thanks for the abundant blessings we have been given throughout the year. As a worshiping community that continues to gather in love around the table of the Lord, may we be reminded this day, we are called to serve one another and to give thanks for God’s unending blessings.

OSP ONLINE MEDITATION CHAPEL

Have you ever wanted to participate in a small faith community, but schedule and fighting traffic kept you from doing so? Have you found it difficult to stay faithful to a mediation practice or regular prayer? If so, you might find OSP’s new online meditation chapel a helpful resource. You can learn all about it at www.contemplativecommunity.org.

Chapels are hosted by trained leaders Mondays – Thursdays and Saturdays each week. You can participate when you are able. We connect together in our online chapel through the video conferencing platform, Zoom. In order to participate in any of the online chapels, you will need to register. Once you have registered, an email will be sent to you with the URL and all the info you will need for participating in any of the chapels throughout the week.

The chapel experience is one hour long and takes place in two parts. You are welcome to stay for part or all of the experience. The first half of our time is spent together in silent prayer/meditation. To see, hear and join with others throughout our community can be a profoundly connecting, expansive and intimate experience. The second half of the chapel time is reserved for reflecting on scripture and simple faith sharing.

For many of us, this time in community binds us together in love. In order to foster a respectful and supportive community, we need to be especially sensitive to each other. We observe these guidelines for effective sharing. Know you are always welcome and can come and go as you are able.

Women and Men of Faith

(d. November 16, 1093)

Margaret of Scotland was a truly liberated woman in the sense that she was free to be herself. For her, that meant freedom to love God and serve others.

Not Scottish by birth, Margaret was the daughter of Princess Agatha of Hungary and the Anglo-Saxon Prince Edward Atheling. She spent much of her youth in the court of her great-uncle, the English king, Edward the Confessor. Her family fled from William the Conqueror and was shipwrecked off the coast of Scotland. King Malcolm befriended them and was captivated by the beautiful, gracious Margaret. They were married at the castle of Dunfermline in 1070.

Malcolm was good-hearted, but rough and uncultured, as was his country. Because of Malcolm’s love for Margaret, she was able to soften his temper, polish his manners, and help him become a virtuous king. He left all domestic affairs to her, and often consulted her in state matters.

Margaret tried to improve her adopted country by promoting the arts and education. For religious reform she encouraged synods and was present for the discussions which tried to correct religious abuses common among priests and laypeople, such as simony, usury, and incestuous marriages. With her husband, she founded several churches.

Margaret was not only a queen, but a mother. She and Malcolm had six sons and two daughters. Margaret personally supervised their religious instruction and other studies.

Although she was very much caught up in the affairs of the household and country, she remained detached from the world. Her private life was austere. She had certain times for prayer and reading Scripture. She ate sparingly and slept little in order to have time for devotions. She and Malcolm kept two Lenten periods before Easter and one before Christmas. During these times she always rose at midnight for Mass. On the way home she would wash the feet of six poor persons and give them alms. She was always surrounded by beggars in public and never refused them. It is recorded that she never sat down to eat without first giving them alms. She was always surrounded by beggars in public and never refused them. It is recorded that she never sat down to eat without first feeding nine orphans and 24 adults.

In 1093, King William Rufus made a surprise attack on Alnwick castle. King Malcolm and his oldest son, Edward, were killed. Margaret, already on her deathbed, died four days after her husband.
